- Ian Crawford and members of the British Chamber in Shanghai
- Anne Brady and members of Brits Abroad in Shanghai
- Kate Pollitt and members of Austcham in Shanghai
- Sue Bishop

and the many others who selflessly gave of their time and resources that made this clothes distribution project a huge success.

Thanks to your efforts, 217 boxes of clothing and toys (10,208 items) were divided and distributed among twenty-three Tibetan students of Qinghai Normal University མཚོ་ལྗོངས་དགེ་ལོན་སློབ་ཆེན།. These students were selected with the assistance of their Community Development teacher, Ms. Sha mo thar ག་མོ་བར།, a Mtsho sngon མཚོ་སྒོན་ (Qinghai 青海) Tibetan and a MA graduate of Brandeis University in Boston. These items were, in turn, distributed to 1,486 Tibetans (782 females; 704 males) living in Si khron སི་ཁྲོན། (Sichuan 四川) Province in the counties of:

On 14 January 2009, the students arrived in Chengdu for a small workshop at The Bridge Fund Office to discuss how to develop final reports with detailed expense reports, approach village leaders, and select clothes recipients. The subprojects were implemented through group work. Each group selected a responsible person as the group leader to manage the project. These leaders were responsible for project fund expenditures, dividing clothes allocated to their group among group members, supervising project implementation, and collecting final reports and submitting them to the project manager.

Students agreed to use these criteria in prioritizing recipients who:

- lacked independent sources of income and/or
- who had very low income
- were handicapped
- had few livestock and farmland
- were elders living alone
- were widows
- were orphans
- were families with several children at schools in
- need of clothes because children who wear ragged clothes are often tormented by their peers at schools
- matched the items, i.e., toys were given to children and larger-sized clothes were given to big people

Not only did 1,486 impoverished Tibetans benefit from this effort, but the students who implemented the project gained valuable experience in project planning, management, implementation, financial accounting, and final reporting. On behalf of all the recipients and students, we extend sincere appreciation to all of you.

Yours truly,

Examples of Recipients

- Chopel is a Hongyuan Middle School student. His family has very few livestock. When he was a little boy his parents divorced and his father left the family. Afterwards, he and his younger sister have lived with their mother who married a man from our village in 2008, but that only added another mouth to feed. Their only cash income (3,000–4,000RMB) is from digging caterpillar fungus. His school expenses are about 1,300RMB. His alcoholic stepfather spends much of the money they earn on alcohol and little on their clothing.
- Abok attends Hongyuan County Middle School. She has seven siblings of whom she was the first to attend middle school. Their father died of lung disease a few years ago. Her mother has shouldered the task of raising eight children single-handedly since that time. Her biggest worry for her children going to school, besides meeting their schooling expenses, is finding them proper clothing.
- Yangjan, a middle school student, and her younger sister attend the same school. Her other two younger sisters attend primary school in Kyarong Township. Annually their tuition and other expenses at school are about 3,000RMB, a substantial sum for her family in which four of the eight children attend school. Beside the school expenses, purchasing clothing is a worry.
- Trowo is an orphan. He doesn't know who his father is. He moved to live in Kyagoma Village with his uncle, who treats him well but the family's poverty does not allow him to have new clothes.
- Tsokyid is a primary school student in Kyarong Township Central School. There are fifteen people in her family. Their financial condition sharply deteriorated after one of her brothers killed a local man and the family then had to pay half of their family property as compensation to the other family.
- Che ge's (b. 1936) husband passed away when she was fifty. She had two sons. The older one died in a car accident. Next, her daughter-in-law (older son's wife) left, leaving her with two young children. Currently, these two children attend primary school in Tangke Township. It is very hard for Chege to support the family of three. They have very little income other than what they can earn from three head of livestock.
  - Q. How do you think this project can help your family?
  - A. I think it helps a lot, for instance, when I got these warm clothes, my children and I won't have to suffer from chilblains during chilly wintertime.
  - Q. How often do you buy new clothes?
  - A. Almost for five years I haven't bought new clothes.
- Suoba (b. 2000), is a primary school student, and his parents' third son. Suoba rarely gets new clothes to wear, due to his family's poverty. He often wears his older brothers' castoffs. When Suoba received the clothes he said, "When school starts, I can wear these clothes and my classmates won't point at my clothes and laugh."
- When Tsering Dorjee's (b. 1955) wife was in her forties she became blind. He took her to many hospitals, but there was only huge expense. His oldest daughter divorced in 2008 and returned home with two children. Now, there are seven people in Tsering Dorjee's home to provide for.
- Yangqing Zhuoma (b. 1954) is the mother of four children. Her husband spends most of his time and money on smoking and drinking in towns. When he returns home late at night, he often brutally abuses Yangqing Zhuoma. Currently two of her older children attend the Tibetan Junior Middle School in Ruoergai County, and her two younger children stay at home to assist her. Since her husband does not earn money for the family, it is hard for her to support the family alone. Last year her oldest son was seriously ill and was hospitalized, forcing her to borrow 1,000 RMB from a relative. She has been unable to return the money and worries that she may not be able to do so for years. When she received our clothes she sobbed and said, "Thanks to everyone who contributed these clothes. It helps me greatly."

- Bachek's (b. 1956) husband died last year, leaving five people for her to care for including her parent-in-laws and her two children. She sold fifteen yaks to pay for her husband's funeral, which left her with only seventeen yaks. The parent-in-laws are too old to help the family. One child studies at high school, but the family faces being unable to pay his school fees, so he may drop-out.
- Sonam Chosdron (b. 1990) is the oldest of four children. Her father is dead. Her family's house burnt down in 2007; now they live in a simple shelter. Currently her two younger siblings attend school, which made her stay at home to help her mother do daily work and collect herbs on mountaintops in summer. Cash earned from the sale of the herbs provides the family with its only income, which is inadequate to buy clothes for all the children.
- Bumo Tutu (b. 1962) was a mother of two children, and the younger one was killed in an tractor accident last year. Her husband passed away five years ago, so the burden for taking care of the family fell on her shoulder. However, she is not able to do much work due to her chronic arthritis and she has no close relatives to help her, thus she keeps her daughter at home to help her to do the daily necessities. Her daughter did not get a chance to attend school to obtain education. Minor cash income for the family is generated through the few head of her family's livestock, which is barely enough to purchase daily necessities.
- Ubu (b. 1947) is a deaf old man who lives alone. He has serious chronic arthritis, which does not allow him to do much work to earn money. His life depends on contributions from good-hearted villagers and an annual government subsidy for poor people.
- Tashi Tubdon's (b. 1991) father died when he was ten. His uncle and aunt live with him with four children. Both his uncle and aunt are too old to do much work to help the family and their children are too young to earn outside income. The uncle seventy-one and still needs to leave the village to collect and sell herbs during summer. This is the family's only cash income. When Tashi was seven, his right hand was burnt by hot oil. Afterwards, he has been unable to do anything with that hand, even hold a pencil. Currently he is attending the local primary school, and often wears tattered clothes given by richer families in his village.
- Tsering Phuntsog (b. 1957) is the father of four children. His wife passed away when he was forty-three. His oldest son ran away from school and never returned. Another son attends junior middle school in Dege County. His two youngest children are twins. His eighty-year-old father and eighty-five-year-old mother also live with him. It is difficult for him to do housework and earn cash income to support the family. The small income he earns comes from collecting and selling herbs in summer. However, this small cash income is inadequate to meet the family's needs. They don't buy new clothes until their clothes are worn out. The two twins in his family never have had a chance to wear new clothes. They often wear clothes discarded by their older brother.
- Wengmu (b. 1966) is a mother of three children. Her husband died five years ago. She gets up very early every day to do housework, and also needs to leave home to earn cash for the family. Unfortunately last year she became seriously ill, which does not allow her to do much work to help the family. The family is currently relying on her oldest child who leaves the village to earn cash income.
- Sonam (b. 1996) is a primary school student who lives with his uncle's family; his parents were killed in a truck accident when he was three years old. He wears ragged clothes covered with different-shaped patches. He says he often suffers from winter cold. When I go home during the holidays, I often hear that Sonam is treated badly by his uncle's family, and that they never buy clothes for him.
- Sonam Dorjee (b. 2001) lives with his sick mother. His father died in a car accident. His mother's poor health prevents her from leaving the village to work. She stays at home to do housework; they have no stable income source other than a small government allowance and donations from relatives and villagers. Sonam rarely gets new clothes. He wears ragged clothes given by villagers.

- She is a leper and lives alone. Villagers avoid working with her in fear she will infect them. She usually stays at home and does not leave home to collect herbs during the summer because she is not welcomed to join the other groups. Her life depends on the government's small monthly allowance.
- Tenzin Gyaltsa (b. 1999) attends the local primary school. His parents divorced when he was five. Neither parent wanted to care for him so he stays with his grandmother, who is seventy years old. They have no independent source of income, and very often he needs to leave school to tend their few livestock so they can have milk and butter in summer. Poverty precludes them from buying clothes; they often wear ragged clothes discarded by other villagers.
- Gelek (b. 1944) lives with her daughter and two grandsons. Her oldest grandson was injured when he was in the forest cutting firewood. He is now paralyzed and no longer able to work to earn money for the family. The younger one is too young to work. The family's only income is from her daughter, who works at construction sites and collects and sells herbs during summer.
- Dekhyid (b. 1964) is a mother of two. Her husband deserted her and left with another woman. She has not remarried and works hard to raise her children. Her older son leaves home to earn cash income for the family. The younger child attends school.
- Sonam (b. 1949) is paralyzed and cannot afford health treatment. When she was fifty-four, her son was involved in a conflict that resulted in him being sentenced to life in prison. Her husband is in his sixties and cannot do much to earn money. Their income depends on their daughter-in-law who does all the house work and leaves the home to try to earn cash for the family. Before her son was arrested, he was trying to build a house for the family and tore down their old house; however, due to his imprisonment, he was not able to complete the construction. The family currently lives in a simple adobe cottage. They have been unable to purchase clothes for their three children because of their very limited income.
- Kawa Lhamo (b. 1952) is a leper and lives with her brother near the village in a building for old people built by a local incarnate lama. Their life depends on the monthly allowance of 100RMB given by the incarnate lama. They have no other income.
- Chenghua (b. 1967) has two children. Her husband died from stomach cancer in 2006. Their life mainly depends on 120RMB given monthly by the local government and working in their fields. Both of her sons attend school. The older one studies at the local Tibetan Middle School, and the younger one studies at an orphan school in another county. She cannot afford clothes for herself and her children; they wear whatever neighbors and relatives give them.
- Rabton (b. 1997) studies at the local primary school and is the best student in his class. He received some toys as a reward for his academic excellence. I hope this motivates other children to study harder.
- Dengba (b. 1948) is the father of three children. He is mentally ill and cannot do heavy work. He stays at home to care for his children and does all the housework. His wife works at construction sites to earn cash for the family. However, she was not able to earn a single RMB for the family in 2008, because the boss at the construction site ran away without paying the workers. She returned home empty-handed. Consequently, the family has problems buying daily necessities for the family. The children have received no new clothes for two years.
- Tsering Bamu (b. 1971) is a mother of two. Her husband is paralyzed and unable to earn cash income. Tsering does the farming work, collects and sells herbs in summer, and does all the daily work. Most of what she earns is spent on her husband's medical expenses.
- Gechos (b. 1941) lives alone in a shabby house. He totally depends on a small government allowance and donations from villagers and relatives.

- Tsering Drolma (b. 1968) lives with her parents. Her husband died after five months of marriage. Now, nobody wants to marry her. Tsering collects and sells herbs during summer time and works at construction sites. This is the family's only income. Her mother does housework. Her father's health expenses are substantial. They have very little money.
- O'Gyan (b. 1972) is a mother of three. Her husband died in a car accident. After her husband's death, his father died after three months, which made her mother-in-law very sick and weak; she requires frequent medical treatment to survive. Moreover, her late husband's younger brother divorced his wife and returned to the home, but he never works hard to earn money for the family. Instead, he spends all his time and money on gambling and drinking in the county town. She kept her oldest daughter at home to help her do housework and farm work. The two younger children attend school—one at Nyarong Middle School, and her youngest son at the local primary school. Life is very hard for this family.
- Puba Tsering's (b. 1996) father died from a stroke two years ago. He lives with his mother. After his father's death his mother became ill and is unable to do much work to help earn money. The only income for his family is a small monthly allowance from the township government, which is just enough to buy medicine for the sick mother and buy food for the family. Puba said after his father's death, he was never able to wear new clothes; all the clothes he is wearing are from his relatives and the villagers.
- Bawu (b. 1970) is a mother of one child. Her husband was killed in a tractor accident. This family is financially impoverished since there is nobody in the family who can go out to earn money. Their life depends on a small monthly government allowance.
- Yishi Chutsu (b. 1955) is the mother of two children. Her husband was killed in a traffic accident seven years ago. She shaved her head in keeping with the local tradition observed by widows. Her children attend school. She stays at home doing daily work. Without outside income sources, her family depends on donations from villagers and a small annual subsidy from the government. Because she is a widow, it is taboo for her to participate in much of the community activity.
- Dawa (b. 1993) lost his parents while he was at the local primary school. He lives now with his uncle, who is a monk. Currently he attends the county middle school. His schooling is partly paid for by the government and partly by his uncle with income he earns in conducting rituals.
- Ayi Ga (b. 1987) is the oldest of three children. Her father is dead. She stays with her mother at home to support her two brothers to attend school. The older brother studies at Kangnan Middle School and the younger at the local primary school. Last year, her uncle found her a husband, but he left her after a year due to dissatisfaction with her family's poverty.
- Tesren Chudren (b. 1990) is currently studying at Kangding Teacher's College, which is located in the capital town of Ganzi Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture. Her study was very good when she was at the junior middle school and she was accepted by Kangding Teachers College after graduation. However, due to her family's poverty, she was unable to attend school and stayed at home for two years. Recently, government has provided scholarships to poor students with good academic performance. She was selected as a scholarship recipients; the government agreed to pay half her schooling cost. Since last year she has studied at Kangding Teacher's College.
- Jiangcuo is an orphan. His parents were killed in a car accident when he was nine years old. Since then he moved to his grandfather's home and stayed with him and his uncle who is a monk. Though they have a house to live in, their life is really poor due to the grandfather being too old to work and the uncle being a monk. Jiangcuo stays at home to help his grandfather with daily life. He has never had a chance to attend school.

- Sonam Drolma is a mother of three children; her oldest son and her husband were killed in a flood, which left Sonam Drolma with two children (b. 2003; b. 2005) who are unable to work to help her. It is difficult for her to care for the home while also taking care of the two children. She often borrows money from relatives to purchase daily necessities and urgent medical treatment for the children.
- Bengza (b. 1973) is a deaf widow. Her husband died a year after they were married. Their only child died from diarrhea, leaving her alone. Her life now depends on the support of her relatives and an annual allowance from the government.
- Lobsang Samton (b. 2007) cannot hear and thus receives less attention and care from his family members. When his parents realized he was deaf, they planned to abandon him in a place where nobody knew them. However, the boy's grandfather stopped them and now takes the boy wherever he goes, e.g., to local monasteries and sacred mountains.
- These two children lost their parents when they were very young and moved to their grandmother's home. Both now attend the local primary school with their grandmother's support. The family lacks anything but a very small annual government allowance (150RMB/month).
- Tsering is a student at Kangding Middle School located in the capital of Ganzi Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture. Both of her parents are farmers. Their cash income is from farming and collecting and selling herbs during summer. This barely provides enough cash to pay for their daily necessities. Her family annually spends 2,500RMB on her schooling, which leaves her family little money for other expenses. Her two younger brothers attend junior middle school in Xiangcheng County Town and will graduate soon, going on to senior middle school, where there will be added expenses.
- Sonam Nyima (1990) is the younger child of a semi-nomadic family. At the age of seven he was sent to the mountains to help his grandfather herd. His grandfather became too old and thus Nyima was left alone in the herding place to care for their livestock. Nyima has only one or two chances of coming to the farming village to meet his family members annually. Currently, his older brother studies in high school. Nyima and his father need to work very hard to provide enough cash for his brother's school costs.
- Bengse (b. 1985) is the mother of two children. Her alcoholic husband spends much of his money and time on drinking. She stays at home, cooks, fetches water, collects firewood, and farms. She rarely has a chance to leave the village to earn cash. Her husband spending their money on liquor and cigarettes means there is no money for her to buy clothes for herself and her children. She borrows money from her relatives and neighbors to purchase daily necessities and to pay for urgent medical treatment for her children.
- Dorjee (b. 1997) is the only child in his family. His family's poverty prevented him having toys. When he received the toys given as part of this project, he was very excited and held them tightly in fear they would be taken away by older children. He later slept with the toys.
- Xiangba Qixi (b.1983) is a housewife and one of a family of nine--her aged parents, two little children, and three younger sisters. As the young adults in the family, she and her husband bear the entire family burden. Xiangba Qixi must cook, fetch water, take care of the old and the young in the family, and cultivate the family's six mu of farmland. Her husband earns some cash by doing seasonal construction work. This is spent on health costs, food, her two younger sisters' school expenses, and other family necessities. Most clothes the family wears were given by others.
- Dawa Caireng (b. 1997) and his younger sister and brother, are from a family of six—a mother and five children. None of the children attend school. Dawa is the oldest child. Their main income is what their mother earns as a street sweeper in Ganzi County Town--500RMB/month.

- Luodu Yanqing studies at the local primary school. The seven people in her family include her parents, grandmother, two younger brothers, and one older sister. Their only income is generated through her father working at construction sites, which must cover cash expenses for a year--it is definitely not enough.
- Yangqing usually wears old clothes worn by her older sister, and almost never gets a chance to get new clothes and toys. When I gave the toys and clothes to her, she was a bit shy to take them at the beginning. We asked her mother to hand the toys to her, so she took the toys from her mother and ran away.
- Rao Xiaoping (b. 1991) studies at the county middle school. The eight people in his family include his parents, three sisters, grandfather, and grandmother. His parents are both farmers. His father has a bad leg from a construction accident and he no longer can leave the village to earn cash income. Currently his three sisters attend school. These schooling costs combined with the medical needs of his grandparents means that Rao Xiaoping rarely receives new clothes

Recipients

Chopel is a Hongyuan Middle School student. His family has very few livestock. When he was a little boy his parents divorced and his father left the family. Afterwards, he and his younger sister have lived with their mother who married a man from our village in 2008, but that only added another mouth to feed. Their only cash income is from digging caterpillar fungus (3,000–4,000RMB). His school expenses are about 1,300RMB. His alcoholic stepfather spends much of the money they earn on alcohol and little on their clothing.

Abok attends Hongyuan County Middle School. She has seven siblings of whom she was the first to attend middle school. Their father died of lung disease a few years ago. Her mother has shouldered the task of raising eight children single-handedly since that time. Her biggest worry for her children going to school, besides meeting their schooling expenses, is finding proper clothing for them.

Yangjan, a middle school student, and her younger sister attend the same school. Her other two younger sisters attend primary school in Kyarong Township. Annually their tuition and other expenses at school are about 3,000RMB, a substantial sum for her family in which four of the eight children attend school. Beside the school expenses, purchasing clothing is a worry.

Trowo is an orphan. He doesn't know who his father is. He moved to live in Kyagoma Village with his uncle, who treats him well but the family's poverty does not allow him to have new clothes. He told me that the clothes he is wearing, in this picture, were given by a neighbor.

Tenley Palden is a middle school student whose family worries about the expense of proper clothes.

Tsokyid is a primary school student in Kyarong Township Central School. There are 15 people in her family. Their financial condition sharply deteriorated after one of her brothers killed a local man and the family then had to pay half of their family property as compensation to the other family.

Recipients are students. After the New Year, the project managers organized an English Training Class for 66 students among whom we chose recipients.

Thanks Letter

Dear All,

Millions of thanks to all who contributed clothes to this project; Kyarong Township has the poorest and most remote villages in Hongyuan County. Kyarong is undeveloped in terms of education and the economy. For most nomads, livestock is the key income source. The majority of Kyarong households have many people but only a small number of livestock. Families with many children usually face difficulty in buying new clothing for each child. In many families, younger children wear their older siblings' clothes, thus reducing the expenses of buying new clothes for each child. However, families who have children attending county-level or higher-level schools must purchase new clothing for their children.

This project lessened families expenditures on clothing. We are grateful to those who collected the clothes and wholeheartedly thank you all.

Sincerely yours,

Drubgyal and Rinchendorjee (on behalf of all the recipients)

Che ge's (b. 1936) husband passed away when she was fifty. She had two sons. The older one died in a car accident. Next, her daughter-in-law (older son's wife) left, leaving her with two young children. Currently, these two children attend primary school in Tangke Township. It is very hard for Chege to support the family of three. They have very little income other than what they can earn from three head of livestock.

Q. How do you think this project can help your family?

A. I think it helps a lot, for instance, when I got these warm clothes, my children and I don't have to suffer from chilblains during chilly wintertime.

Q. How often do you buy new clothes?

A. Almost for five years I haven't bought new clothes.

Suoba (b. 2000), is a primary school student, and his parents' third son. Suoba rarely gets new clothes to wear, due to his family's poverty. He often wears his older brothers' castoffs. Suoba received the clothes pictured here and said, "When school starts, I can wear these clothes and my classmates won't point at my clothes and laugh."

When Tsering Dorjee's (b. 1955) wife was in her forties she became blind. He took her to many hospitals, but there was only huge expense. His oldest daughter divorced in 2008 and returned home with two children. Now, there are seven people in Tsering Dorjee's home to provide for.

A. What is the hardest problem for your family?

Q. We have many problems, but I think the biggest one is I have loans to others.

A. Are you interested in this project?

Q. Yes, off course, I hope we have more projects like this.

Yangqing Zhuoma (b. 1954) is the mother of four children. Her husband spends most of his time and money on smoking and drinking in towns. When he returns home late at night, he often brutally abuses Yangqing Zhuoma. Currently two of her older children attend the Tibetan Junior Middle School in Ruorgai County, and her two younger children stay at home to assist her. Since her husband does not earn money for the family, it is hard for her to support the family alone. Last year her oldest son was seriously ill and was hospitalized, forcing her to borrow 1,000 RMB from a relative. She has been unable to return the money and worries that she may not be able to do so for years. When she received our clothes she sobbed and said, "Thanks to everyone who contributed these clothes. It helps me greatly."

Bachek's (b. 1956) husband died last year, leaving five people for her to care for including her parent-in-laws and her two children. She sold 15 yaks to pay for her husband's funeral, which left her with only 17 yaks. The parent-in-laws are too old to help the family. One child studies at high school, but the family faces being unable to pay his school fees, so he may drop-out.

Thanks Letter

Dear All,

First we want to say thanks very much to everyone who worked on this project, particularly to those who contributed and collected the clothes and toys. This project benefited many people who live on extremely low income, old people without children, handicapped people, orphans, and so on.

Usually winter is longer than summer in nomadic places, so most people suffer from chilly winter due to not having enough warm clothes to wear. However, through your great generosity and kindness many people in Tangkor Township have warm clothes to wear during wintertime, so they will suffer less than in previous years. Once again we want to say thanks to everyone who contributed, collected, and organized this project.

Sincerely,

Tsering Skyba (Oscar; project manager)

Recipients

Before the clothes were distributed among the villagers, they were not very excited, because they thought those clothes might not be very suitable for them. However, when the clothes were put into their hands, they were surprised to find the clothes were nice and suitable. Smiles and happiness were there in plenty. They held the clothes tightly and said: "We don't need to buy new clothes for a year. We will have some cash surplus to buy other daily necessities." They all expressed their wish to have similar projects in their community in future.

Sonam Chosdron (b. 1990) is the oldest of four children. Her father is dead. Her family's house burnt down in 2007; now they live in a simple shelter. Currently her two younger siblings attend school, which made her stay at home to help her mother do daily work and collect herbs on mountaintops in summer. Cash earned from the sale of the herbs provides the family with its only income, which is inadequate to buy clothes for all the children.

Bumo Tutu (b. 1962) was a mother of two children, and the younger one was killed in an tractor accident last year. Her husband passed away five years ago, so the burden for taking care of the family fell on her shoulder. However, she is not able to do much work due to her chronic arthritis and she does not have any close relatives to help her besides keeping her daughter at home to help her to do the daily necessities. Thus, her daughter did not get the chance to going to the school to obtain education. The minor cash income for the family is generated through herding the few heads of her family's livestock, which is barely enough to purchase the daily necessities.

Ubu (b. 1947) is a deaf old man who lives alone. He has serious chronic arthritis, which does not allow him to do much work to earn money. His life merely depends on contributions from good-hearted villagers and the annual subsidy for the poor people from government.

Tashi Tubdon (b. 1991) is a member of an extended family. His father died when he was ten. His uncle and aunt live with him with four children. Both his uncle and aunt are too old to do much work to help the family and their children are too young to earn outside income. His is 71 but still needs to go out and collect and sell herbs during summer to help the family. This is the family's only cash income. When Tashi was 7, his right hand was burnt by hot oil. Afterwards, he has been unable to do anything with that hand, even hold a pencil. Currently he is going to the local primary school, and often wears tattered clothes given by richer families in his village.

Tsering Phuntsog (b. 1957) is the father of four children. His wife passed away when he was 43. His oldest son ran away from school and never returned. Another son attends junior middle school in Dege County. His two youngest children are twins. His 80-year-old father and 85-year-old mother also live with him. It is difficult for him to do housework and earn cash income to support the family. The small income he earns comes from collecting and selling herbs in summer. However, this minor cash income is inadequate to meet the family's needs. They don't buy new clothes until their clothes are worn out. The two twins in his family never had a chance to wear new clothes. They often wear the clothes discarded by their older brother.

Wengmu (b. 1966) is a mother of three children. Her husband died five years ago. She must get up very early every day to do all the housework, and also needs to leave home to earn cash for the family. Unfortunately last year she became seriously ill, which does not allow her to do much work to help the family. The family is currently relying on her oldest child who leaves the village to earn cash income.

Sonam (b. 1996) is a primary school student who lives with his uncle's family; his parents were killed in a truck accident when he was three years old. He wears ragged clothes covered with different shaped patches, and he says he often suffers from winter cold. When I go home during the holidays, I often hear that Sonam is treated badly by his uncle's family, and that they never buy clothes for him.

Recipients

Sonam Dorjee (b. 2001) lives with his sick mother. His father was killed in a car accident. His mother's poor health prevents her from going out to work; she stays at home to do the housework thus, they have no stable income source. They have only a small government monthly allowance and donations from relatives and villagers. Sonam rarely gets new clothes. He often wears ragged clothes given by the villagers.

She is a leper and lives alone. Villagers avoid working with her in fear she will infect them. She usually stays at home. She does not leave home to collect herbs during the summer because she is not welcomed to join the other groups. Her life depends on the government's small monthly allowance.

Tenzin Gyaltsso (b. 1999) attends the local primary school. His parents divorced when he was five. Neither parent wanted to care for him so he stays with his grandmother who is seventy years old. They have no independent source of income, and very often he needs to leave school to tend their few livestock so they can have milk and butter during the summer. Their poverty precludes them from buying clothes; they often wear ragged clothes discarded by other villagers.

Gelek (b. 1944) lives with her daughter and two grandsons. Her oldest grandson was injured when he was in the forest cutting firewood. He is now paralyzed and no longer able to work to earn money for the family. The younger one is too young to work for the family. The family's only income is from her daughter, who works at construction sites and collects and sells herbs during summer.

Dekhyid (b. 1964) is a mother of two children. Her husband deserted her and left with another woman. She has not remarried and works hard to raise her children. Her older son leaves home to earn cash income for the family. The younger child attends school.

Recipients

- Sonam (b. 1949) is paralyzed and cannot afford health treatment. When she was fifty-four, her son was involved in a conflict that resulted in him being sentenced to life in prison. Her husband is in his sixties and cannot do much to earn money. Their income depends on their daughter-in-law who does all the house work and leaves the home to try to earn cash for the family. Before her son was arrested, he was trying to build a house for the family and tore down their old house; however, due to his imprisonment, he was not able to complete the construction. The family currently lives in a simple adobe cottage. They have been unable to purchase clothes for their three children because of their very limited income.
- Kawa Lhamo (b. 1952), a leper and lives with her brother near the village in a building for old people built by a local incarnate lama. Their life depends on the monthly allowance of 100RMB given by the incarnate lama. They have no other income.
- Chenghua (b. 1967) has two children. Her husband died from stomach cancer in 2006. Their life mainly depends on 120RMB given monthly by the local government and working in their fields. Currently both of her sons attend school. The older one studies at the local Tibetan Middle School, and the younger one studies at an orphan school in another county. She cannot afford clothes for herself and her children; they wear whatever neighbors and relatives give them.
- Rabton (b. 1997) studies at the local primary school and is the best student in his class. He received some toys as a reward for his academic excellence. I hope this motivates other children to study harder.

Recipients

Dengba (b. 1948) is the father of three children. He is mentally ill and cannot do heavy work. He stays at home to care for his children and does all the housework. His wife works at construction sites to earn cash for the family. However, she was not able to earn a single RMB for the family in 2008, because the boss at the construction site ran away without paying the workers. She returned home empty-handed. Consequently, the family has problems buying daily necessities for the family. The children have received no new clothes for two years.

Gonbu Wangdon (b. 1942) has five children but lives alone. He lived with his oldest son for a time but his son spent his time gambling and drinking so he left. Gonbu currently lives on a monthly allowance of 150RMB from the government, which is barely enough for him buy medicine when he is sick. All his food and clothes are donated by good-hearted villagers and his other four children. (He did not allow me to take a photograph.)

Lhamo Drolma (b. 1998) is a primary school student who, because of her family's poverty, never gets new clothes to wear. She wears her older sisters' castoffs. She said that when she goes to the school, her schoolmates point their fingers at her back and laugh at her ragged clothes.

Gengga (b. 1945) lives with his daughter and his son-in-law. Both treat Gengga badly. They do not buy clothes for him and at times when he is ill, they are reluctant to buy him medicine. He wears old clothes given by relatives and good-hearted villagers.

Lhayong (b. 1987) is a mother of five children. Her husband deserted her when she gave birth to her fifth baby. She must take care of her children and do all the housework. She has little time to leave the village and earn cash income for the family. Her only income is a small monthly allowance from the local government which does not allow purchase of clothing for herself and her children.

Project Description:	345 items (toys, shoes, pants, coats, jeans, jackets) were distributed to 67 people (43 females and 24 males). I went to the government resettled community to select the recipients, because these households were moved from pastoral land to agricultural areas, so they have little land to cultivate, and all their livestock were sold when they are being resettled.

Recipients

Tsering Bamu (b. 1971) is a mother of two. Her husband is paralyzed and unable to earn cash income. Tsering does the farming work and collects and sells herbs in summer. She also does all the daily work. Most of what she earns is spent on her husband's medical expenses.

Gechos (b. 1941) lives alone in a shabby house. He totally depends on a small government allowance and donations from villagers and relatives.

Tsering Drolma (b. 1968) lives with her parents. Her husband died after five months of marriage. Now, nobody wants to marry her. Tsering collects and sells herbs during summer time and works at construction sites. This is the family's only income. Her mother does housework. Her father's health expenses are substantial. They have very little money.

Recipients

O'Gyan (b. 1972) is a mother of three. Her husband died in a car accident. After her husband's death, his father died after three months, which made her mother-in-law very sick and weak; she needs to receive medical treatment frequently to survive. Moreover, her late husband's younger brother divorced his wife and returned to the family, but he never works hard to earn some money for the family. Instead he spends all his time and money on gambling and drinking in the county town. She kept her oldest daughter at home to help her do housework and farm work. The two younger children attend school—one at Nyarong Middle School, and her youngest son at the local primary school. Life is very hard for this family.

Recipients

Puba Tsering's (b. 1996) father died from a stroke two years ago. He lives with his mother. After his father's death his mother became ill and is not able to do much work to help earn money. The only income for his family is a small monthly allowance from the township government, which is just enough to buy medicine for the sick mother and buy food for the family. Puba said after his father's death, he was never able to wear new clothes; all the clothes he is wearing are from his relatives and the villagers.

Bawu (b. 1970) is a mother of one child. Her husband was killed in a tractor accident. This family is financially impoverished since there is nobody in the family who can go out to earn money. Their life depends on a small monthly government allowance.

Recipients

Yishi Chutsu (b. 1955) is the mother of two children. Her husband was killed in a traffic accident seven years ago. She shaved her head in keeping with the local tradition observed by widows. Her children attend school. She stays at home doing daily work. Without outside income sources, her family depends on donations from villagers and a small annual subsidy from the government. Because she is a widow, it is taboo for her to participate in much of the community activity.

Dawa (b. 1993) lost his parents while he was at the local primary school. He lives now with his uncle, who is a monk. Currently he attends the county middle school. His schooling is partly paid for by the government and partly by his uncle with income he earns in conducting rituals.

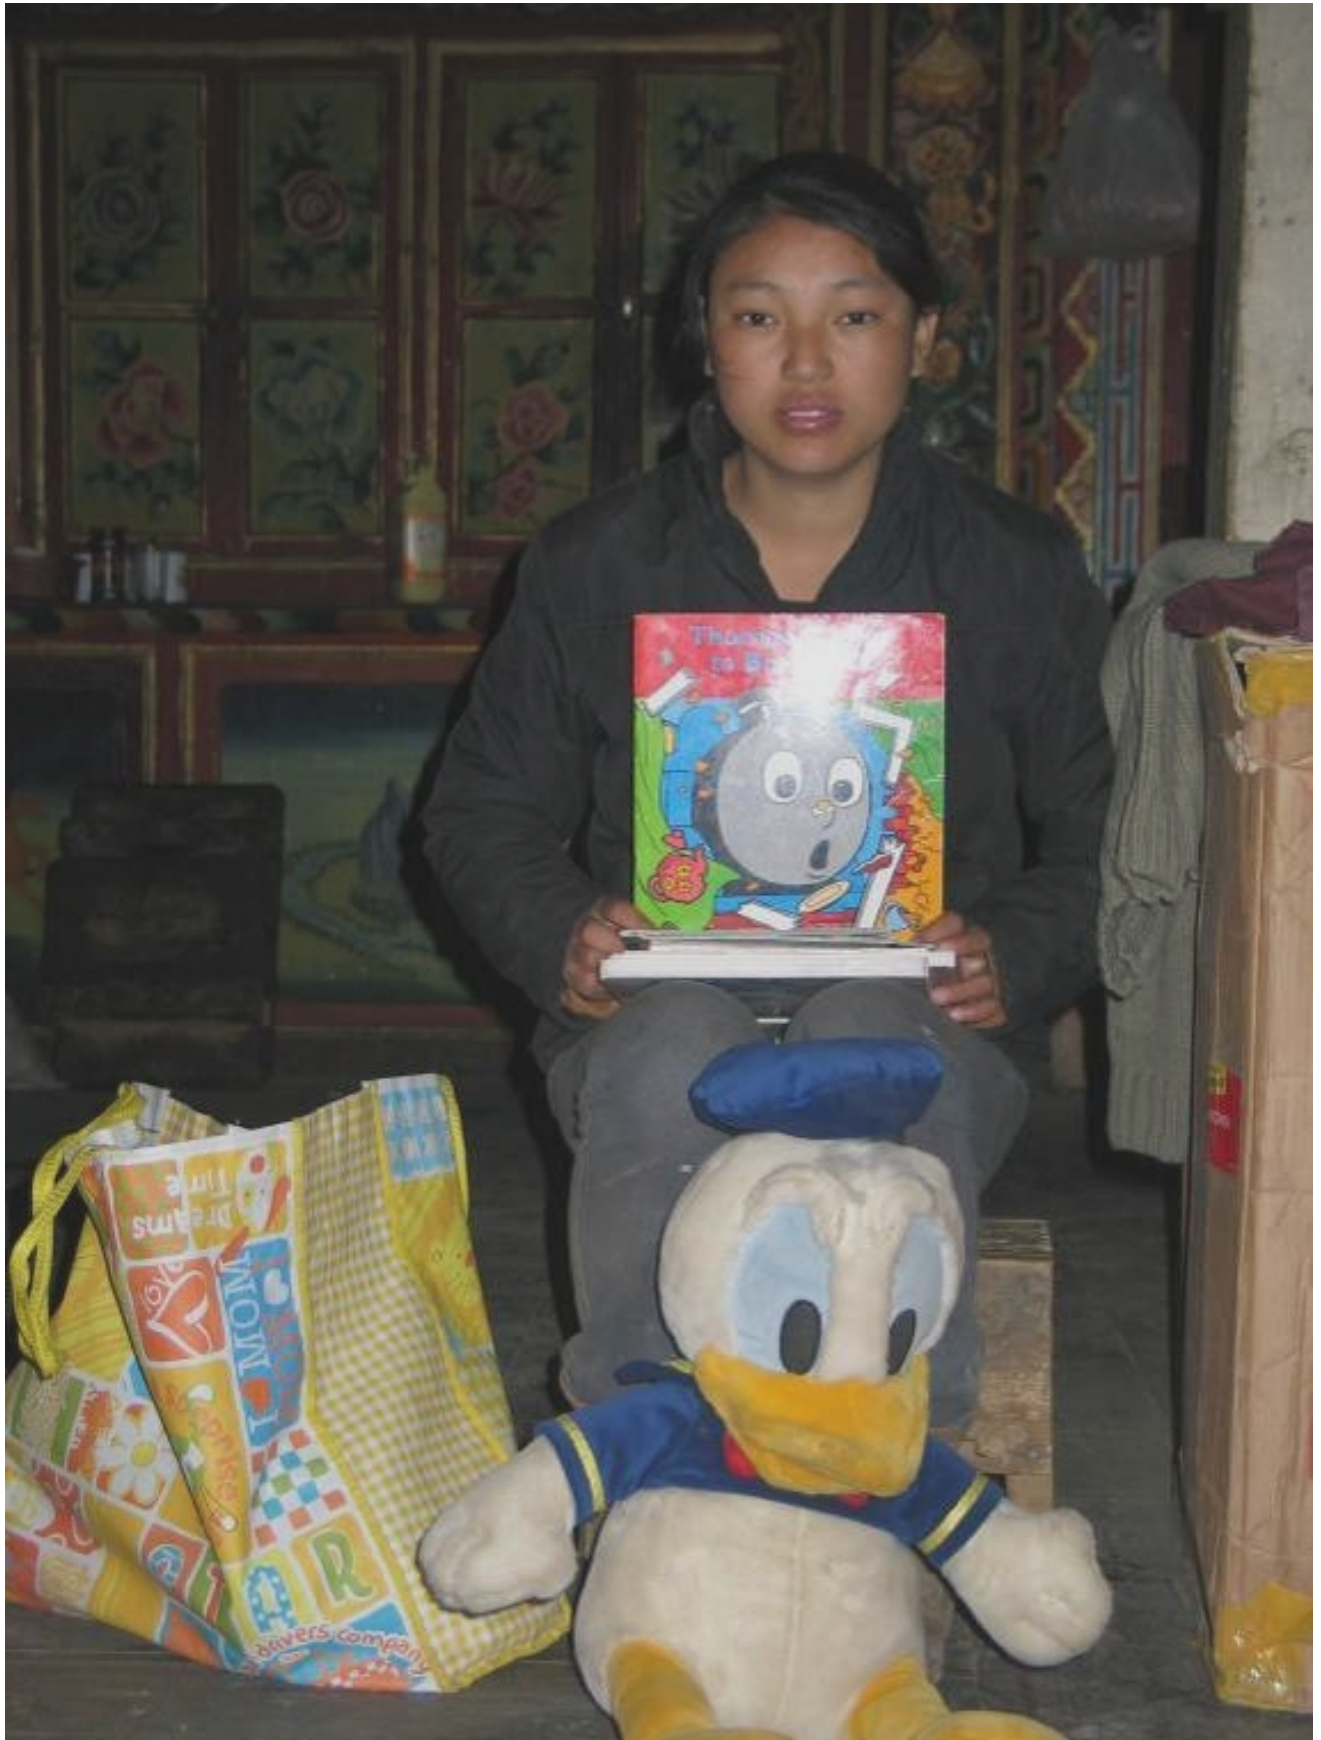

Ayi Ga (b. 1987) is the oldest of three children. Her father is dead. She stays with her mother at home to support her two brothers to attend school. The older brother studies at Kangnan Middle School and the younger at the local primary school. Last year, her uncle found her a husband, but he left her after a year due to dissatisfaction with her family's poverty.

Tesren Chudren (b. 1990) is currently studying at Kangding Teacher's College, which is located in the capital town of Ganzi Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture. Her study was very good when she was at the junior middle school and she was accepted by Kangding Teachers College after graduation. However, due to her family's poverty, she was unable to attend school and stayed at home for two years. Recently, government has provided scholarships to poor students with good academic performance. She was selected as a scholarship recipients; the government agreed to pay half her schooling cost. Since last year she has studied at Kangding Teacher's College.

Recipients

Jiangcou is an orphan. His parents were killed in a car accident when he was nine years old. Since then he moved to his grandfather's home and stayed with him and his uncle who is a monk. Though they have a house to live in, their life is really poor due to the grandfather being too old to work and the uncle being a monk. Jiangcuo stays at home to help his grandfather with daily life. He has never had a chance to attend school.

Sonam Drolma is a mother of three children; her oldest son and her husband were killed in a flood, which left Sonam Drolma with two children (b. 2003; b. 2005) who are unable to work to help her. It is difficult for her to care for the home while also taking care of the two children. She often borrows money from relatives to purchase daily necessities and urgent medical treatment for the children.

Bengza (b. 1973) is deaf. Her husband died a year after they were married. Their only child died from diarrhea, leaving her alone. Her life depends on the support of her relatives and an annual allowance from the government.

Lobsang Samton (b. 2007) cannot hear and thus receives less attention and care from his family members. When his parents realized he was deaf, they planned to abandon him in a place where nobody knew them. However, the boy's grandfather stopped them. The grandfather takes the boy wherever he goes, e.g., to local monasteries and sacred mountains.

The two children below lost their parents when they were very young and moved to their grandmother's home. Both now attend the local primary school with their grandmother's support. The family lacks anything but a very small annual government allowance (150RMB/month).

Recipients

Tsering is a student at Kangding Middle School located in the capital of Ganzi Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture. Both of her parents are farmers. Their cash income is from farming and collecting and selling herbs during summer. This barely provides enough cash to pay for their daily necessities. Her family annually spends 2,500RMB on her schooling, which leaves her family little money for other expenses. Her two younger brothers attend junior middle school in Xiangcheng County Town and will graduate soon, going on to senior middle school, where there will be added expenses.

Sonam Nyima (1990) is the younger child of a semi-nomadic family. At the age of seven he was sent to the mountains to help his grandfather herd. His grandfather became too old and thus Nyima was left alone in the herding place to care for their livestock. Nyima has only one or two chances of coming to the farming village to meet his family members annually. Currently, his older brother studies in high school. Nyima and his father need to work very hard to provide enough cash for his brother's school costs.

Recipients

Bengse (b. 1985) is a mother of two children. Her alcoholic husband spends much of his money and time on drinking. She stays at home and cooks, fetches water, collects firewood, and farms. She rarely has a chance to leave the village to earn cash for the family. Her husband spending their money on liquor and cigarettes means there is no money for her to buy clothes for herself and her children. She borrows money from her relatives and neighbors to purchase daily necessities and to pay for urgent medical treatment for her children.

Dorjee (b. 1997) is the only child in his family. His family's poverty prevented him having toys. When he received the toys given as part of this project, he was very excited and held them tightly in fear they would be taken away by older children. He later slept with the toys.

Recipients

Xiangba Qixi (b.1983) is a housewife and one of a family of nine--her aged parents, two little children, and three younger sisters. As the young adults in the family, she and her husband bear the entire family burden. Xiangba Qixi must cook, fetch water, take care of the old and the young in the family, and cultivate the family's six mu of farmland. Her husband earns some cash by doing seasonal construction site work. This is spent on health costs, food, her two younger sisters' school expenses, and other family necessities. Most clothes the family wears were given by others.

Dajie (1976) is from Si E Village, which is far from the county town. He is a father of three children. His wife died several years ago. He must not only work in his family's fields but also work at construction sites to earn cash for the family. All the housework is done by mother (b. 1942) who also much care for her sick husband.

Dawa Caireng (b. 1997) and his younger sister and brother, are from a family of six—a mother and five children. None of the children attend school. Dawa is the oldest child. Their main income is what their mother earns as a street sweeper in Ganzi County Town--500RMB/month.

Duoga (1993), a school-aged boy stays at home to help his grandfather. There are two people in his family, his grandfather and himself. Besides two mu of land, there are no other valuable assets for the family. Both Duoga and his grandfather are unable to work in their fields, so they rent the two mu of land to another family, who pay one hundred kilograms of tsampa<sup>3</sup> a year in return—their only income for the family throughout the year.

Villagers sorted the clothes to make it easier for the chosen villagers to take the clothes they wanted. The project manager visited the village leader and interviewed many villagers to get the most accurate information and suggestions to choose the right people in great need of clothing.

Luodu Yanqing studies at the local primary school. The seven people in her family include her parents, grandmother, two younger brothers, and one older sister. Their only income is generated through her father working at construction sites, which must cover cash expenses for a year--it is definitely not enough.

Yangqing usually wears old clothes worn by her older sister, and almost never gets a chance to get new clothes and toys. When I gave the toys and clothes to her, she was a bit shy to take them at the beginning. We asked her mother to hand the toys to her, so she took the toys from her mother and ran away.

Rao Xiaoping (b. 1991) studies at the county middle school. The eight people in his family include his parents, three sisters, grandfather, and grandmother. His parents are both farmers. His father has a bad leg from a construction accident and he no longer can go outside the village to earn cash income. Currently his three sisters are also going to school. These schooling costs combined with the medical needs of his grandparents means that Rao Xiaoping rarely receives new clothes.
